

VERDUN CAPTURED BY PATTON'S ARMY IN ITS DASH TOWARD GERMAN BORDER; NAZIS FLEE 'BLOODIEST' BATTLEFIELD

Fall of Fortress City Places Americans 25 Miles From Belgium and Only 50 Miles from Germany Itself—Breach opened in Maginot Hinge—Beginning of Last Lap of American March to Siegfried Line.

By Pierre J. Huss
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
With the U. S. Third Army in France, Sept. 1.—(INS)—The historic fortress city of Verdun was captured today by Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr.'s U. S. Third Army in its sweep toward the German border.

Striking on a wide front east of Reims, Patton's forces whipped through the Aisne-Meuse Valley and seized Verdun as the Germans retreated from the bloodiest battlefield of World War I without putting up any serious resistance.

The fall of Verdun places the Americans 25 miles from Belgium, 35 miles from the Duchy of Luxembourg and 50 miles from Germany itself, opening a breach in the Maginot hinge and beginning the last lap of the American march toward the Siegfried line.

Patton's men also captured Commercy, crossed the Meuse at several points and sent patrols ahead into the areas beyond Verdun. Except for scattered shots and the constant presence of German stragglers who popped out unexpectedly to surrender, the ride in some places might have been a tourist trip to the American cemetery and monument commemorating the famous battle in World War I where Marshal Henri Pétain gained fame with his immortal phrase: "They shall not pass."

Rolling heights, leafy with young trees, spring suddenly into view just beyond the town, where a panoramic glance over the vast expanse of forest gives one a clear understanding how the immortal Lost Battalion of the first war could have been lost and surrounded. Like Belleau Wood, none of the war memorials or road markers have been disturbed in the past four years. Reconnaissance patrols had no time to stop there, but I made a brief pause myself and found the caretaker ready to hoist the Stars and Stripes once again.

Not a single American soldier was killed yesterday in this sector of the Argonne Forest.

Possibly the Germans would like to make a stand, but Gen. Patton is not giving them time to make a stand anywhere.

On Wednesday I drove 500 miles in a jeep covering cross-country tank moves and filing dispatches. Yesterday I took another gruelling trip.

Refreshments were served to Raymond and James Gallagher, William McGee, Horace Saxton, William Wildman, William Terrence, Ernest Sperling, William Ennis, Hugh Arbutnot, Joseph Elmer, August Arnold, "Jack" Gosline, Walter Appleton, Robert Stone, Howard Collier, Thomas Donnelly, Gene Callahan, Bristol; Frank Everett, Newportville.

Morrisville Man Is A Prisoner In Germany

MORRISVILLE, Sept. 1.—Francis Ryan, Washington street, has received word from the War Department that his son, Pvt. William Ryan, reported missing since June 6, is a prisoner of war in Germany. Ryan, a member of a paratroop division, was one of the first men to land in the invasion on D-Day. He entered the service in April of 1942 and received his training at Fort Benning, Ga., where he also acted as an instructor. He is 26 years old and while attending Morrisville high school was prominent in athletics.

PREDICTS A SEVERE WINTER FOR SECTION

Frank Hall, Perkasi's Forecaster, Addresses Service Club

RECORD OF 38 YEARS

SELLERSVILLE, Aug. 31.—That a severe winter is on the way is the prediction of Frank Hall, Perkasi's weather forecaster. Mr. Hall has been making deductions from atmospheric conditions for the past 38 years, and says he is no "goose-bone guy."

Mr. Hall made predictions of things to come before members of Sellersville Kiwanis Club. He went on record as the man who predicts one of the worst winters in 11 years here during the winter of 1944-45. His calculations are based on the official U. S. observations that weather patterns move in cycles.

Severe winters seem to come in cycles of ten or 11 years, according to Mr. Hall, and one of them is definitely due. He also predicts heavy rain storms in a few days here. This could be expected, said he, because the Sellersville-Perkasi area now is 7 inches below its normal supply of rainfall for the period dating back to June 29.

To indicate how truly weather seems to follow the 11 year cycle, Mr. Hall pointed out how several years ago the Delaware river rose so high above normal that many of its bridges were washed away. It happened on the very 66th anniversary of a similar event in the county. Thus he said the multiple of 11 would indicate that the weather had kept true to its cycle over a period of many years.

Interesting figures on the temperature for this summer as shown by Mr. Hall's officially approved thermometer, were given.

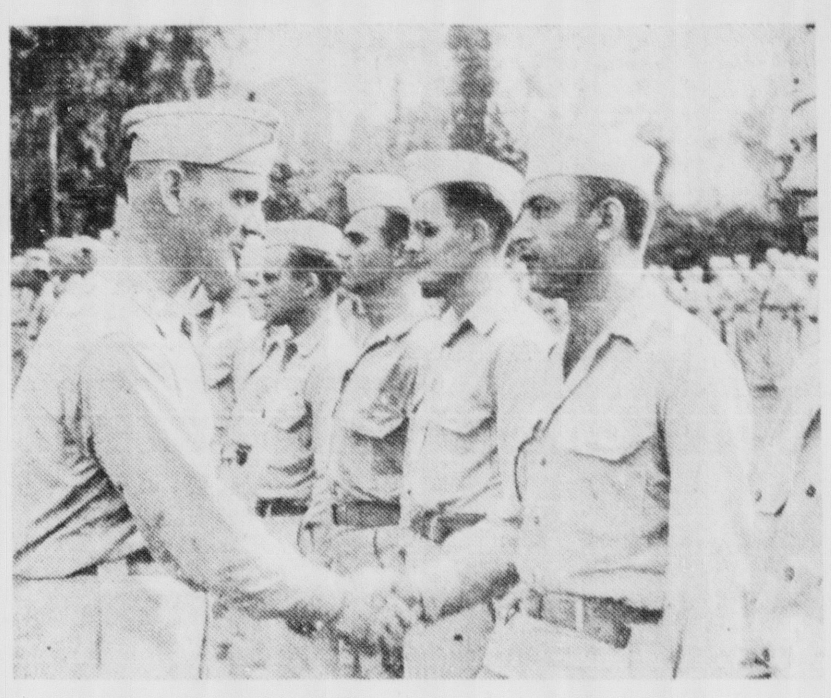

There were more extended spells of extreme heat this year than at

RETURN FROM CONVENTION

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew L. Retter, Cleveland street, returned home on Monday following an eight days' trip to Chicago, Ill., and Washington, D. C. Mr. Retter was a delegate from Pennsylvania Railroad Post No. 559, Newark, N. J., to the 45th national encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, in Chicago, and he and his wife while there also visited Mrs. Mary Hatcher, wife of Tech. Sgt. Roy Hatcher, Sgt. Hatcher, who is now a prisoner of the Germans, formerly resided in Bristol. Mr. and Mrs. Retter were guests of Mrs. Clara Pilkington and Mrs. Johnson Emmert, at Washington.

With the XIVth Army Corps Somewhere in the Southwest Pacific Area, Sept. 1.—PFC Frank J. LaRosa, 4 Green street, Bristol, Pa., is here shown being presented with the Combat Infantryman's Badge by Lt. Col. John E. Frick of Ottawa, Ohio. PFC LaRosa, now serving in a military police unit with the XIVth Army Corps, was in action with the 25th Division on Guadalcanal. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincenzo LaRosa, and has been in the army nearly three years.

MORALS IN NATIONAL FINANCE

PART ONE:
THE AMERICAN PRECEDENTS

(Doylestown Intelligencer, August 23rd)

Among the isms and theories brought from Europe to America by the New Deal is the belief that government, having no soul, therefore has no conscience and is bound by none of the usual rules of morality.

This concept, which is a perversion of the older and quite different thought: "The king can do no wrong," was developed in 1513 by an Italian named Machiavelli. He wrote a guidebook for despots, showing how they could advance themselves by subordinating public morals to political expediency.

His ideas have been extremely prevalent among the nations of continental Europe. One recent writer works—both literary and military—carry the Machiavellian thesis to its logical conclusion is the author of Mein Kampf, Adolf Hitler.

The British people have always been rather successful in resisting the conviction that anything goes with government; that the ends of individual or party success justify any means of accomplishing them. The English have always wished to pride themselves on government that lived up to a code; they have demanded good faith, sanctity of promises, inviolability of pledges, a general sense of morality and decorum.

The United States faced the question extremely early in our national life. Our decision was then, and continued until fairly recently to be, that government be on a high moral plane; that broken word and broken faith were not the American tradition.

Alexander Hamilton fathered the policy. In his "First Report" as Secretary of the Treasury in 1790, he emphasized that "the credit of a nation should be well

Junior Hostesses Are To Meet at Cornwells Hts.

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Sept. 1.—A meeting for junior hostesses is called by members of Bristol Chapter, American War Mothers, for Tuesday evening next. The session will be held at eight o'clock in St. Charles Hall, here.

All those who have their cards asked to attend, as it is stated this is an important session for those serving on canteen committees in the future.

Senior hostesses, Mrs. Elwood Knight and Mrs. John Yorty, will be in charge.

SGT. JOSEPH MYERS IS AWARDED AIR MEDAL

Croydonite Has More Than 30 Missions Over Enemy Territory

PRaises RED CROSS

CROYDON, Sept. 1.—Sgt. Joseph F. Myers, son of Mrs. Frank Snyder, has been awarded the air medal with three oak leaf clusters for meritorious achievement while participating in bombardment over enemy territory.

Myers holds the Distinguished Flying Cross, and also wears a ribbon with another cluster for a presidential citation which was made to his group.

Sgt. Myers, of the U. S. Army Air Corps, is a turret gunner, waist window gunner and assistant engineer. He has completed 30 missions over enemy territory, and is expected home soon on a furlough after nearly 1½ years in England.

In a recent letter to his mother he said in part: "I have just returned from seven days at a rest camp. It was run by the Red Cross and they sure did treat us well. Couldn't do enough for us. The 5th of July was my birthday and they baked a delicious cake and we had a little party. Now I am in the best of health, ready for more."

"Pop" Comes To Life

(By "The Stroller")
A holiday week-end is in the offing! The gasoline ration board can attest to that if no one else can.

Yesterday a woman with her young son entered Bristol Ration Board office on Farragut avenue. With a saddened expression she requested supplementary gasoline rations, stating that her husband had just died and that she desired to continue his business.

The sympathetic workers commenced their explanation of the form she should fill out so that the board might consider such supplementary rations.

Suddenly glancing out the window while his mother's needs were being cared for, "Sonny" exclaimed: "Hey, Mom, here comes Pop down the street."

Flustered and red of face, "Mom" said as she put her hand over Sonny's mouth and turned to the clerk: "Oh, my gracious, you might think he never saw his father."

They left in double-quick time.

Mrs. Robert Hunt and daughter Nan, Trenton, N. J., have returned from a visit with Mrs. Hunt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Hoffman, Pine street.

Dr. Bowen is Named To Magazine Advisory Board

Dr. Genevieve Bowen, elementary supervisor and director of the curriculum of Bucks County schools, has been appointed to the advisory board of "The Instructor," one of the best known monthly magazines for classroom teachers.

Besides Dr. Bowen, the advisory board includes Dr. Fannie Dunn, professor of rural education, Columbia, N. Y.; Dr. Grace E. Storm, department of education, University of Chicago, Chicago, Ill.; and Dr. Helen Heffernan, chief, state division of elementary education and rural schools, Sacramento, Cal.

Dr. Bowen had previously contributed articles for "The Instructor" as well as for other publications. This is only one of the many recognitions that have come to Bucks County's elementary supervisor, who is one of the well known elementary supervisors in Eastern United States. Just previous to the workshop at Haycock, Dr. Bowen was in charge of a workshop at the University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill.

MacMillan Company will shortly publish a book by Dr. Bowen especially written to help elementary school teachers in rural areas. She came to Bucks County in her present position in June, 1942. Her leadership and assistance in the past two school terms has brought county-wide improvement in classroom instruction.

UPDYKE FUNERAL SATURDAY

Funeral of Mrs. Hubert Updyke, who died on Wednesday, will be conducted tomorrow at two p. m., and not this afternoon as stated in yesterday's issue of The Courier. The service will be conducted at the home of Miss Violet Briker, Brown street, Tullytown. Friends may call this evening. American Legion Auxiliary members will meet at the Baker home at 7:30 tonight to conduct a service.

LOCATE LT. WICHSE; IS PRISONER OF WAR

Eileen Wiltshire Wichser Receives Word From Government

PLANE BOMBARDIER

2nd Lt. John H. Wichser, Jr., 24, who had been reported missing in action, is a prisoner of war of the Germans, according to a telegram received by his wife, Eileen Wiltshire Wichser, Linden street, yesterday. Mrs. Wichser is informed that a government letter of information will follow.

Another recent message received from the government was to the effect that Lt. Wichser is the recipient of the Air Medal.

Wichser, son of Councilman and Mrs. John H. Wichser, Sr., Dorchester street, was reported missing as of July 17th, and yesterday's information came as welcome news to his family. He is a bombardier on a B-24 Liberator.

British 8th Army Penetrates Gothic Outer Line

Rome—British Eighth Army forces, strongly supported by a British naval unit, engaged in fierce and bloody fighting today on high ground north of the Foglia river in the Italian Adriatic sector, penetrating the outer Gothic Line defenses 1,000 yards at one point.

The Nazis made bitter counterattacks supported by tanks, but they were beaten off by the battle-hardened Allies.

West of the Apennines, other Eighth Army troops continued to close in on the Gothic line. A four miles advance was scored in the upper Tiber Valley. Allied units striking from Florence pushed forward on both sides of the city for new gains.

Bagrianov Cabinet Resigns in Bulgaria

London—Bulgaria, frantically searching for a way out of the war, showed a new indication of internal unrest today when the three-month old cabinet of Ivan Bagrianov resigned. The Nazi DNB agency told of the government's downfall, coupling it with an assertion that Bagrianov and his aides will serve until a new cabinet can be formed.

CHILD CARE CENTER WILL OPEN HERE AT BRISTOL TERRACE

First One in Bucks County Will Start Functioning On Tuesday

CAN CARE FOR EIGHTY

Children of School and Pre-School Age Will Both Be Accepted

Bucks County's first Child Care Center, which is located at Bristol Terrace, No. 2, equipped by the Federal Public Housing Authority, will commence functioning on Tuesday, September 5th. Mrs. Sara Baker Buckley will direct activities of the center.

The Child Care Center, it is stated, is organized on a basic plan for 80 children, aged two to 12. There will be available enrollments for 20 children of two and three years of age; 20 of four and five years of age; and 40 aged six to twelve.

Throughout the school terms the children of school age will be in the center only when there are no sessions of school, and during vacation periods full programs will be in order.

Each of the groups will be headed by a teacher trained in the work, and an assistant teacher will be provided for each pre-school group. There will also be a cook and an individual to care for the cleaning needs.

The hours of the center on the six days-of-week it will be open, will be from six a. m. to 5:30 p. m. Registration may be made until September 2nd from one to five p. m. at the Center. The fee announced is $3 per week for each pre-school child. Rates for school age children will vary depending upon the number of hours spent at the center.

Children cared for at the Center will be afforded a daily health inspection, balanced hot dinner in the middle of the day, rest periods, outdoor and indoor play.

The girls and boys privileged to attend the child care center are those of all working mothers, or those whose fathers work at night and require quiet for day-time sleeping.

WHAT OUR BOYS ARE DOING TO WIN THE WAR

A NINTH AIR FORCE SERVICE COMMAND UNIT

The Department of Operations, Sept. 1.—Firepower and mobility combined has created an arsenal of power which threatens to exceed even the most fondest expectations. Mobility has become the working slogan of every unit of the Ninth Air Force Service Command, but the arsenal of firepower which has razed a battered German army, had its origin in the ammunition sections of air force ordnance companies. Creating for the combat squadrons a punishing shoulder of shocking force, these sections have helped support the ground troops inside Europe.

Private Anthony Bianco, serving with the bomb-handling ammunition section of such a unit in this theater, is proud of a record of nearly ten thousand tons of bombs turned over to Ninth Air Force two-engine bombers since D-Day. His section's task of passing the ammunition has been an unceasing ring of activity since the moment it landed in the theater. Together with the transporting, assembling, and fusing of the air force's bomb bay load, small arms ammunition, pyrotechnics and flares have been supplied to flying units. As far as Private Bianco is concerned, his air force ordnance company is certainly in the fight up to its ears and intends staying just there until "cease firing" rings through Europe.

Private Bianco is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dominick Bianco, 433 Logan street, Bristol, Pa. Before entering service from New Cumberland in September, 1942, he was employed by the Fleetings Air Company in Bristol.

TRUMAN'S RECORD

There is no news, of course, in the fact that Sen. Harry S.
Truman, President Roosevelt's running mate, was the choice of the Hagues, the Kellys and the Flymns. That Senator Truman was one of Tom Pendergast's most loyal supporters has been mentioned, but a glance at the record will disclose how really loyal he was to that discredited and imprisoned political manipulator.

In January, 1938, President
Roosevelt renominated Maurice
M. Milligan as United States attorney for the western district of Missouri. Mr. Milligan had already sent members of the Pen-dergast machine to jail and was then gunning for Pendergast himself.

Senator Truman immediately announced he would oppose the appointment and on the floor of the Senate on February 15, 1938, he made a bitter and violent attack on Mr. Milligan. How much the Senate thought of this might be ascertained from the fact that the appointment was confirmed
immediately after the close of Mr.
Truman's denunciation.

The arch-Democratic New York Times commented editorially that "Tom Pendergast
may have lost the cemetery vote,
but he can not lose Harry Truman." Many Missouri papers attacked Truman, and the St. Louis Times-Star ran a cartoon showing Mr. Truman trying in vain to hose out a fire on a sinking ship
flying the pirate flag and labeled
"Pendergastism."

No wonder the big city machine politicians wanted Harry Truman so badly.

CATCHING UP WITH RUSSIA

In 1918, the Allied powers were preparing for the big, final offensive of 1919. Everything was geared toward that end. But when the American commanders realized the full extent of the political situation within Germany, the date of the offensive was changed and Gen. John J. Pershing threw everything he had at the Germans in the fall of 1918.
By November the war was over.

This is midsummer of 1944.
The German armies are encircled.
Within Germany, there has been revolt, put down by ghastly bloodletting.

On the Eastern Front, the Russians are driving forward at a tremendous pace, using a daring and a boldness that is frequently breath-taking. By passing strongly defended key points and driving inland without regard for those sectors, the Russians have been using a strategy that is obviously hazardous, but equally obviously tremendously successful.

While the Russian strategy by no means suggests that the Anglo-American forces follow suit, there is the possibility that the Allied high command in western Europe can use the Russian theme of striking at the right moment.

There are vast forces still at the disposition of the British and American commanders. And if there ever was the proper moment to use those forces, it would seem to be this summer.

O Lord, lift up the light of Thy countenance upon us; let Thy peace rule in our hearts; and may it be our strength and our song in the house of our pilgrimage. We commit ourselves to Thy care and keeping this day; let Thy grace be mighty in us, and sufficient for us. Keep us from sin; give us the rule over our own spirits; and prevent us from speaking unadvisedly with our lips. May we live together in peace and holy love, and do Thou command Thy blessing upon us, even life for evermore. Prepare us for all the events of the day; for its joys as well as for its trials. Give us grace to deny ourselves, to take up our cross daily, and to follow in the steps of our Lord and Master. Amen.

By JOE ELBERSON

Licenses revoked . . . the Game Commission recently announced that a total of 781 persons will be denied hunting and trapping licenses in Pennsylvania this year because of carelessness or negligence in the use of firearms and for violation of the State Game Laws.

All of these revocations were authorized by the commission following hearings before referees.

In making this announcement the Commission asserted that only by such stringent penalties can the lives of persons be protected and the welfare of wildlife in the State be safeguarded.

Hunting and trapping privileges for 47 persons were revoked for periods of one to five years beginning September 1st, 1944, because of carelessness and negligence in the use of firearms during the 1943 hunting season.

In addition 326 persons were denied hunting and trapping privileges, in most cases for two years, for flagrant violations of the Game Laws.

These penalties issued by the Commission this month, plus other penalties previously ordered, make a total of 781 persons whose hunting and trapping privileges have been denied this year.

Step forward in Pennsylvania conservation . . . in a recent statement the Game Commission announced the employment of Jacob Bates Abbott, of Haverford, nationally-known wildlife illustrator and naturalist, to assist in promoting and expanding the department's educational program.

Abbott, a graduate of Harvard, where he majored in art and illustration, has achieved an enviable reputation in the conservation field, not only through his drawings, which have appeared on the covers of many of the country's foremost magazines, but through his interesting outdoor narratives, the material for which he acquired in 25 years of intensive study and research of the habits of wild birds and animals.

His first assignment will constitute a series of paintings of all the game birds and mammals and fur-bearers in the Commonwealth for the covers of the Commission's monthly magazine, "The Pennsylvania Game News," a monthly natural history department; and a pictorial weekly or semi-monthly series of conservation topics which will be made available to newspapers.

He will also design educational posters and exhibits, illustrate bulletins and reports, and otherwise use his skill to help advance the Game Commission's wildlife management program.

Migratory bird hunting methods . . . the following is permitted: shotgun only, not larger than 10-gauge, fired from shoulder (including hand-operated repeating shotgun of not more than 3-shell capacity, which must be plugged to 3 shots); bow and arrow; dog; blind; boat propelled by hand; floating device other than sinkbox; artificial water-fowl decoys. Injured or dead waterfowl may be picked up by means of a motor boat, sailboat or other craft.

The following is prohibited: automatic shotgun, hand operated, repeating shotgun, of more than 3-shell capacity in magazine and chamber combined; all rifles; live duck or goose decoys; automobile; aircraft; sinkbox (battery); power boat, sailboat, or any device towed by power boat or sailboat; the placing or distributing in any manner of corn, wheat, oats, or other grain or product thereof, salt, or any kind of food, whereby migratory game birds are attracted or lured, regardless of distance between such food and the hunter; the taking of waterfowl by use of cattle, horses or mules. No aircraft, power boat or floating device of any kind may be used to concentrate, drive, rally or stir up waterfowl or coots.

ation of Doura-Europos, the Greco-Roman city excavated by Yale University interests. The Byblos operation in Lebanon, operated by the Service of Antiquities, was also mentioned, as well as the activities at Mari, excavated by the Louvre.

A "site" was described by Mr. Pearson as visible ruins, such as those at Palmyra and Athens. He also told how a tel is found—ruins on which newer civilizations have been built.

Method of operation at the sites was gone into in detail, the workmen being paid a top rate of 50c a day. How a tel is excavated, by spade or by layers, the disposal of the dirt; the deductive reasoning to arrive at conclusions as to age, etc., were considered.

The manner in which contracts are entered into with local governments was mentioned.

The Rotarians took much interest also in living conditions at the sites, obtaining of supplies, the combatting of dirt and disease among the natives; the superstitions and character of the natives.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

ed his special train to stop at Chicago for a conference with Chairman Hannegan, who was his manager at the convention; that he had had telephone conversations with other politicians on the trip; that the timing of the trip fitted perfectly into the Commander-in-Chief strategy on which his fourth-term effort is being based. None of these—and other things—could be brought to Mr. Roosevelt's attention after he had declared it a "fool" question and exhibited irritation at being asked it. The dignity of the Presidential office is such that the President cannot be argued with by his questioners. The accuracy of his statements cannot be questioned and resentment at his manners may not be shown.

THE REPORTERS knew that it was not a "fool" question. They knew it was a very timely, pertinent and proper one. But, not one man present dared say that—or repeat the question. That sort of thing cannot be done at a President's press conference. The topic just had to be dropped. It was the same way the same day on another matter. Reporters asked the President whether he had anything to say about the invitation to Mr. Willkie to discuss foreign policy with him. Mr. Roosevelt replied that he had never heard of any such invitation. That ended that so far as the conference was concerned. The New York Herald Tribune next day did repeat emphatically that an invitation to Mr. Willkie had been sent from the White House on White House stationery and been received by Mr. Willkie.

BUT, NO ONE had the hardihood to rectify this fact to Mr. Roosevelt after his statement. It would have been equivalent to doubting the President's word and that just isn't done openly in a press conference. Yet, there wasn't a reporter present who did not believe there was a basis for the published story. It had been printed widely all over the country days before, with no White House denial by the astute and alert Presidential secretary, Mr. Early. A week later Mr. Roosevelt was compelled to admit that he had sought a conference with Mr. Willkie exactly as had been stated. Reporters would not submit to this sort of equivocation from anyone else. They have to submit when it comes from the President—but they do not like it.

CONTRAST all this with a Dewey press conference. The prestige of his present office affords him no comparable protection. Either patronage, evasion or inaccuracy would be instantly and openly resented by the attending newspapermen. At the Dewey press conference no holds are barred and there is nothing to check the questioners, except good manners and a sense of fairness. Among the men who attend the Dewey conferences are some who are extremely hostile to him, eager to trip him up. These ask the most embarrassing questions of which they can think. There are no reasons why, if Mr. Dewey's answer to a question is considered inadequate or evasive, the question should not be repeated and the subject followed up—and it is.

GOVERNOR DEWEY is in no position to dispose of an awkward inquiry by saying it is a "fool" question, or by showing temper. That sort of thing for him would be pretty near fatal from the press standpoint. He has to "take it" but the President does not have to "take it"—and he shouldn't. The Presidential office is entitled to a respect due no other. But the fact that he commands and gets that respect ought to make the incumbent exceedingly careful about taking advantage of his position, abusing his power and bullying his questioners. This President is anything but careful about these things. With knowledge of his power and both the ability and the willingness to use it, it is not surprising Mr. Roosevelt is at greater ease in press conferences than Mr. Dewey. The President dominates and controls his gatherings in a way Mr. Dewey cannot do. Nor can any other man who is not President. The only way Mr. Dewey can handle the embarrassing or improper question is to say "no comment." Otherwise he has to come through. The comparison isn't a fair one.

ling ride but nowhere did I run into a heavy fight. There were only sporadic nests of enemy resistance which usually quit after the first few minutes of shooting.

It's a blitzkrieg in reverse, mainly along key roads. Patton's army shows no signs of slowing up nor does the weary Wehrmacht exhibit any evidences of bucking up and rallying for a major battle.

The fact is that Patton is now within striking distance of Belgium and is forcing the Germans to yield France without doing very much about it.

Predicts Severe Winter For This Section

any time since he has been observing weather changes. He also pointed out that a July drought does more damage to crops than at any other time of year because the heat then dries out any other moisture in the ground.

The heaviest rainfall he observed took place July 27, 1942, when five inches fell in four hours, while the deepest snow he recorded on April 5, 1915, when 20 inches fell. On Dec. 25, 1909, another 20 inches of snow fell.

Extreme temperatures for this section included 20 below zero reported at Quakertown in February, 1934. At that time Mr. Hall recorded a reading of 16 below zero on February 9 and February 28. His other reading of that temperature came on February 2, 1918. His highest reading was Aug. 7, 1918, when it was 106 degrees.

He uses a standard barometer, a thermometer and a rain gauge to submit his reports to the state authorities. The lowest barometer reading he ever took here in his career was on March 6, 1932, when the indicator stood at 28.48 inches while there were high winds, snow and then rain. The highest was exactly 31 inches on Jan. 27, 1927. It was clear and cold, with the thermometer at 4 below zero. The next day it was snowing. For comparison's sake he said the lowest barometer reading taken in the U. S. was 26.35 in a Florida hurricane with a 175 mile an hour wind. The highest reading in the U. S. was 31.79 taken on the west coast. Normal pressure in a barometer is 29.92.

Mr. Hall has been forecasting weather 35 years, but he does not use caterpillars or goosebumps in his work. William Pfeffer presented him to the club.

The historic fortress city of Verdun fell to the lightning-swift forces of Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army today in its sweep toward the German border.

Striking on a wide front east of the cathedral city of Reims, Patton's Yanks flashed through the Aisne-Meuse valley and seized Verdun as the Germans fled from the bloodiest battlefield of World War I without putting up any serious resistance.

GREENVILLE—(INS)—T/5 John Smith realized every pitcher's dream when he pitched a no-hit, no-run soft ball game recently at Camp Reynolds for the Tenth Group team. He allowed only one member of the station hospital nine to reach first base, on a walk.

established" not only for the practical motive of being able to borrow again in the future, but also for the more abstract "cause of good government." As to how to maintain public credit, he said:

"The ready answer . . . is, by good faith; by a punctual performance of contracts . . .

"There are arguments for it which rest on the immutable principles of moral obligation . . . (There is) an intimate connection between public virtue and public happiness."

In this connection he also dwelt upon the principle that "the creation of (national) debt should always be accompanied by some means of extinguishment."

This appraisal accomplished more than merely carrying through Hamilton's program for repaying all public debts, supporting the "paper" currency, and enacting taxes to meet current needs; it set the young nation's feet on a path of integrity which it held for a century and a half.

The sanctity of public credit and currency was inviolate for many generations. Even the turbulent "free silver" issue of the latter part of the last century, culminating in the eloquence of Bryan and his "Cross of Gold" speech, could not swerve the determination of the American people to risk nothing which might weaken the nation's financial stability.

The principle of governmental morality in finances received full endorsement in 1932 from both Candidate Roosevelt and his party platform. As to national finances, their pledge was for strict economy; specifically, "to accomplish a saving of not less than 25 per cent in the cost of Federal Government."

The pledge on currency was: "We advocate a sound currency to be preserved at all hazards."

Moreover, Mr. Roosevelt because quite warm over the intimation by Republicans that some of the Democratic proposals might force the nation off the gold standard and result in "rubber dollars." Those interested may re-read his Brooklyn address on November 4, 1932.

Mr. Roosevelt said that the hint the nation might go off gold "was a libel on the credit of the United States," and he cited several of his own speeches to show his "unqualified acceptance" of his party's sound-currency plank.

None of the implied and direct promises, bearing so closely upon the good faith and credit of the nation, was kept.

The doctrine of the Hitlers and Machiavellis prevailed, not the traditional American concept of "public virtue."

When President Roosevelt had been in office a year, the currency had been inflated approximately half, gold was in process of being outlawed, and national expenditures, instead of being cut one quarter, had nearly doubled. (Tomorrow: Double-Cross of Gold.)

VERDUN CAPTURED BY PATTON'S ARMY IN ITS DASH TOWARD GERMAN BORDER; NAZIS FLEE 'BLOODIEST' BATTLEFIELD

Fall of Fortress City Places Americans 25 Miles From Belgium and Only 50 Miles from Germany Itself
—Breach opened in Maginot Hinge— Beginning of Last Lap of American March to Siegfried Line.

By Pierre J. Huss
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
With the U. S. Third Army in France, Sept. 1.—(INS)—The historic fortress city of Verdun was captured today by Lieut. Gen.
George S. Patton, Jr.'s U. S. Third
Army in its sweep toward the German border.

Striking on a wide front east of Reims, Patton's forces whipped through the Aisne-Meuse Valley and seized Verdun as the Germans retreated from the bloodiest battlefield of World War I without putting up any serious resistance.
The fall of Verdun places the Americans 25 miles from Belgium,
35 miles from the Duchy of Luxembourg and 50 miles from Germany itself, opening a breach in the Maginot hinge and beginning the last lap of the American march toward the Siegfried line.

Patton's men also captured Com-mercy, crossed the Meuse at several points and sent patrols ahead
into the areas beyond Verdun.

Except for scattered shots and the constant presence of German stragglers who popped out unexpectedly to surrender, the ride in some places might have been a tourist trip to the American cemetery and monument commemorating the famous battle in World War I where Marshal Henri Pétain gained fame with his immortal phrase:
"They shall not pass."

Rolling heights, leafy with young trees, spring suddenly into view
just beyond the town, where a panoramic glance over the vast expanse of forest gives one a clear understanding how the immortal
Lost Battalion of the first war
could have been lost and surrounded. Like Belleau Wood, none of the war memorials or road markers
have been disturbed in the past four years. Reconnaissance patrols had no time to stop there, but I made a brief pause myself and found the caretaker ready to hoist the Stars and Stripes once again.

Not a single American soldier was killed yesterday in this sector
of the Argonne Forest.

Possibly the Germans would like to make a stand, but Gen. Patton is not giving them time to make a stand anywhere.

On Wednesday I drove 500 miles in a jeep covering cross-country
tank moves and filing dispatches.

Yesterday I took another gruel-

Ralph Ratcliffe Given A Farewell Party Here

The Third Ward Eagles gave a farewell party on Wednesday evening in honor of Ralph Ratcliffe, Jefferson avenue, who entered the Navy on Thursday. Ralph received a gift.

Refreshments were served to:
Raymond and James Gallagher,
William McGerr, Horace Saxton,
William Wildman, William Terne-
sea, Ernest Sperling, William Ennis, Hugh Arbutnot, Joseph Elmer, August Arnold, "Jack" Gosline, Walter Appleton, Robert Stone, Howard Collier, Thomas
Donneley, Gene Callahan, Bristol;
Frank Everett, Newportville.

"Vincenzo Caporale sends his regards to Aunt Anna of Bristol.
"Mom, I took the camera with me and I took lots of pictures and will send the negatives home to you. I sure was very sad when I saw the town. Lots of the houses are burned down and the people are left without anything. . . ."

By FRANK R. KENT

Unfair Comparison
Washington, Aug. 31.—SOME TIME ago
a newspaper correspondent, making a comparison
between the two 1944 Presidential candidates, declared that though Governor
Dewey handled
himself very well
indeed, and displayed an admir-
able frankness,
he was not quite as much as ease in his press conferences as Mr. Roosevelt in his.

IT WOULD be amazing if he were,
As President of the United States.
Mr. Roosevelt possesses advantages in a press conference so great as to leave no real room for comparison with anyone else. All of these advantages, of course, are based on the immense prestige of the high office he occupies. This affords him a protection which no other public man possibly can enjoy. It prevents aim from being cross-examined, contradicted or pinned down. It enables him, with impunity, to patronize, dominate, direct and, sometimes, insult. All of these things—and more—he has done in his press conferences—and all of them the representatives of the press have to take because he is the President.

—O—
THERE ISN'T a thing they can do about it. For example, at his first press conference after his return from the "trip of inspection" which took him across the country to Honolulu and back and, which, in the view of a vast number of people, had a distinct political flavor,
Mr. Roosevelt, when asked what he had to say on the subject, branded
the question as a "fool" question,
said it had been asked by a reporter who accompanied him on the trip; that the reporter knew it was a fool question and that it had been "planted" by the news agency he represented. That was all the answer he gave. The correspondents could obtain no other. They couldn't ever try to obtain more.

—O—
IT COULD not be pointed out to him that on this trip he had divert-

Morrisville Man Is A Prisoner In Germany

MORRISVILLE, Sept. 1.—Francis Ryan, Washington street, has received word from the War Department that his son, Pvt. William Ryan, reported missing since June 6, is a prisoner of war in Germany.

Ryan, a member of a paratroop division, was one of the first men
to land in the invasion on D-Day.
He entered the service in April of 1942 and received his training at Fort Benning, Ga., where he also acted as an instructor. He is 26 years old and while attending Morrisville high school was prominent in athletics.

PREDICTS A SEVERE WINTER FOR SECTION

Frank Hall, Perkasi's Forecaster, Addresses
Service Club

RECORD OF 38 YEARS

SELLERSVILLE, Aug. 31.—That a severe winter is on the way is the prediction of Frank Hall, Perkasi's weather forecaster. Mr. Hall has been making deductions from atmospheric conditions for the past 38 years, and says he is no "goose-bone guy."

Mr. Hall made predictions of things to come before members of Sellersville Kiwanis Club. He went on record as the man who predicts
one of the worst storms in 11 years here during the winter of 1944-45. His calculations are based on the official U. S. observations that weather patterns move in cycles.

Severe winters seem to come in cycles of ten or 11 years, according to Mr. Hall, and one of them is definitely due. He also predicts heavy rain storms in a few days here. This could be expected, said he, because the Sellersville-Per-kasi area now is 7 inches below its normal supply of rainfall for the period dating back to June 29.

To indicate how truly weather seems to follow the 11 year cycle, Mr. Hall pointed out how several years ago the Delaware river rose so high above normal that many of its bridges were washed away. It happened on the very 66th anniversary of a similar event in the county. Thus he said the multiple of 11 would indicate that the weather had kept true to its cycle over a period of many years.

Interesting figures on the temperature for this summer as shown by Mr. Hall's officially approved thermometer, were given.

There were more extended spells of extreme heat this year than at

RETURN FROM CONVENTION

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew L. Retter,
Cleveland street, returned home
Monday following an eight days'
trip to Chicago, Ill., and Washington, D. C. Mr. Retter was a delegate from Pennsylvania Railroad Post, No. 599, Newark, N. J., to the 45th national encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, in Chicago, and he and his wife while there also visited Mrs. Mary Hatcher, wife of Tech. Sgt. Roy Hatcher, Sgt. Hatcher, who is now a prisoner of the Germans, formerly resided in Bristol. Mr. and Mrs. Retter were guests of Mrs. Clara Pillington and Mrs. Johnson Emmert, at Washington.

RECEIVES COMBAT INFANTRYMAN'S BADGE

With the XIVth Army Corps Somewhere in the Southwest Pacific Area, Sept. 1.—PFC Frank J. LaRosa, 4 Green street, Bristol, Pa., is here shown being presented with the Combat Infantryman's Badge by Lt. Col.
John E. Frick of Ottawa, Ohio. PFC LaRosa, now serving in a military police unit with the XIVth Army Corps, was in action with the 25th Division on Guadalcanal. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincenzo LaRosa, and has been in the army nearly three years.

MORALS IN NATIONAL FINANCE

PART ONE:
(Doylestown Intelligencer, August 23rd)

Among the isms and theories brought from Europe to America by the New Deal is the belief that government, having no soul, therefore has no conscience and is bound by none of the usual rules of morality.

This concept, which is a perversion of the older and quite different thought: "The king can do no wrong,"
was developed in 1513 by an Italian named Machiavelli.
He wrote a guidebook for despots, showing how they could advance themselves by subordinating public morals
to political expediency.

His ideas have been extremely prevalent among the nations of continental Europe. One recent writer whose works—both literary and military—carry the Machiavellian thesis to its logical conclusion is the author of Mein Kampf, Adolf Hitler.

The British people have always been rather successful in resisting the conviction that anything goes with government; that the ends of individual or party success justify any means of accomplishing them. The English have always wished to pride themselves on government that lived up to a code; they have demanded good faith,
sanctity of promises, inviolability of pledges, a general sense of morality and decorum.

The United States faced the question extremely early in our national life. Our decision was then, and continued until fairly recently to be, that government be on a high moral plane; that broken word and broken faith
were not the American tradition.

Alexander Hamilton fathered the policy. In his "First Report" as Secretary of the Treasury in 1790, he emphasized that "the credit of a nation should be well

Junior Hostesses Are To Meet at Cornwells Hts.

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Sept. 1
—A meeting for junior hostesses is called by members of Bristol Chapter, American War Mothers, for Tuesday evening next. The session will be held at eight o'clock in St.
Charles Hall, here.

All those who have their cards
are asked to attend, as it is stated
this is an important session for those serving on canteen committees in the future.

Senior hostesses, Mrs. Elwood Knight and Mrs. John Yorty, will be in charge.

SGT. JOSEPH MYERS IS AWARDED AIR MEDAL

Croydonite Has More Than 30 Missions Over
Enemy Territory

PRAISES RED CROSS

CROYDON, Sept. 1.—Sgt. Joseph F. Myers, son of Mrs. Frank Snyder, has been awarded the air
medal with three oak leaf clusters for meritorious achievement while participating in bombardment over
enemy territory.

Myers holds the Distinguished Flying Cross, and also wears a ribbon with another cluster for a presidential citation which was made to his group.

Sgt. Myers, of the U. S. Army
Air Corps, is a turret gunner, waist window gunner and assistant engineer. He has completed 30 missions over enemy territory, and is expected home soon on a furlough after nearly 1½ years in England.

In a recent letter to his mother
he said in part: "I have just returned from seven days at a rest camp. It was run by the Red Cross and they sure did treat us well. Couldn't do enough for us.
The 5th of July was my birthday and they baked a delicious cake and we had a little party. Now I am in the best of health, ready for more."

"Pop" Comes To Life

(By "The Stroller")
A holiday week-end is in the offing! The gasoline ration board can attest to that if no one else can.

Yesterday a woman with her young son entered Bristol Rat-tion Board office on Farragut avenue. With a saddened expression she requested supplmentary gasoline rations, stating that her husband had just died and that she desired to continue his business.

The sympathetic workers commenced their explanation
of the form she should fill out so that the board might consider such supplementary rations.

Suddenly glancing out the window while his mother's needs were being cared for,
"Sonny" exclaimed: "Hey,
Mom, here comes Pop down the street."

Flustered and red of face,
"Mom" said as she put her hand over Sonny's mouth and turned to the clerk: "Oh, my gracious, you might think he never saw his father."

They left in double-quick time.

Mrs. Robert Hunt and daughter Nan, Trenton, N. J., have returned from a visit with Mrs. Hunt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Hoffman, Pine street.

ARCHAEOLOGY IS THEME OF SPEAKER

Henry F. Pearson Delivers
Address at Rotarians'
Dinner-Meeting

"Archaeology in the Near East"
was the subject of Henry F. Pearson, of Rohm & Haas Co., when he appeared before members of Bristol Rotary Club yesterday at the weekly dinner-meeting. Members gathered at Bowen's Restaurant,
with Gordon Fromm presiding.

A number of visitors were present, and Mr. Pearson was introduced by George Ardrey, chairman of international service committee.
Mr. Pearson remarked at the outset of his address that the field of archaeology is divided among treasure hunters and those interested in scientific reconstruction of past civilizations. Work in the field and in the museum and library
is covered by these groups.

The speaker mentioned that treasure hunters are interested mainly from the standpoint of adventure, but in order to secure recognition they realize they must produce something of archaeological value. The real archaeologist is interested in past history; not in the inherent value of items unearthed, but in what the items represent in telling about the past.

The speaker told in a most interesting manner how sites are found, mainly by luck. Some are unearthed by clandestine excavators seeking items of financial value; and the interest of antique and pottery dealers was told of.
The latter groups frequently secure real antiquities at a cost less than they could be reproduced.

Some time was given to consider the

Dr. Bowen is Named To Magazine Advisory Board

Dr. Genevieve Bowen, elementary supervisor and director of the cirriculum of Bucks County schools, has been appointed to the advisory board of "The Instructor," one of the best known monthly magazines
for classroom teachers.

Besides Dr. Bowen, the advisory board includes Dr. Fannie Dunn, professor of rural education, Columbia, N. Y.; Dr. Grace E. Storm, department of education, University of Chicago, Chicago, Ill.; and Dr.
Helen Heffernan, chief, state division of elementary education and rural schools, Sacramento, Cal.

Dr. Bowen had previously contributed articles for "The Instructor" as well as for other publications. This is only one of the many recognitions that have come to Bucks County's elementary supervisor, who is one of the well known elementary supervisors in Eastern United States. Just previous to the workshop at Haycock, Dr. Bowen was in charge of a workshop at the University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill.

MacMillan Company will shortly publish a book by Dr. Bowen especially written to help elementary school teachers in rural areas. She came to Bucks County in her present position in June, 1942. Her leadership and assistance in the past two school terms has brought county-wide improvement in classroom instruction.

UPDYKE FUNERAL SATURDAY

Funeral of Mrs. Hubert Updyke, who died on Wednesday, will be conducted tomorrow at two p. m.,
and not this afternoon as stated in yesterday's issue of The Courier.
The service will be conducted at the home of Miss Violet Baker, Brown street, Tullytown. Friends may call this evening. American Legion Auxiliary members will meet at the Baker home at 7:30 tonight to conduct a service.

LOCATE LT. WICHSE; IS PRISONER OF WAR

Eileen Wiltshire Wichser Receives Word From Government

PLANE BOMBARDIER

2nd Lt. John H. Wichser, Jr., 24, who had been reported missing in action, is a prisoner of war of the Germans, according to a telegram received by his wife, Eileen Wiltshire Wichser, Linden street, yesterday. Mrs. Wichser is informed that a government letter of information will follow.

Another recent message received from the government was to the effect that Lt. Wichser is the recipient of the Air Medal.

Wichser, son of Councilman and Mrs. John H. Wichser, Sr., Dorrance street, was reported missing as of July 17th, and yesterday's information came as welcome news to his family. He is a bombardier on a B-24 Liberator.

NAMED BANK EXAMINER

Large Part of Rocket Base Area Eliminated

half of Hitler's rocket base area in France has now been eliminated.

Biggest Armada of Planes Aloft; Believed Headed For Robot Coast

London—Hundreds of Allied planes, one of the biggest armadas ever seen, thundered out over the Straits of Dover today in crystal clear weather, presumably headed for the Nazi robot bomb area of northern France and targets in the tottering Reich itself.

British 8th Army Penetrates Gothic Outer Line

Rome—British Eighth Army forces, strongly supported by a British naval unit, engaged in fierce and bloody fighting today on high ground north of the Foglia river in the Italian Adriatic sector, penetrating the outer Gothic Line defenses 1,000 yards at one point.

The Nazis made bitter counter-attacks supported by tanks, but they were beaten off by the battle-hardened Allies.

West of the Apennines, other Eighth Army troops continued to close in on the Gothic line. A four miles advance was scored in the upper Tiber Valley. Allied units striking from Florence pushed forward on both sides of the city for new gains.

Stiffening Nazi resistance on the outer breakwaters of the Gothic line indicated that the Germans feel the battle of the Po valley has begun.

Bagrianov Cabinet Resigns in Bulgaria

London—Bulgaria, frantically searching for a way out of the war, showed a new indication of internal unrest today when the three-months old cabinet of Ivan Bagrianov resigned. The Nazi DNB agency told of the government's downfall, coupling it with an assertion that Bagrianov and his aides will serve until a new cabinet can be formed.

QWI recorded a broadcast that said there can be no discussion of armistice terms between Bulgarian and Allied diplomats. The former simply will be given the Allied demands, amounting to unconditional surrender and allowed time to study them but negotiations will not be in order, the announcer said.

CHILD CARE CENTER WILL OPEN HERE AT BRISTOL TERRACE

First One in Bucks County
Will Start Functioning
On Tuesday

CAN CARE FOR EIGHTY

Children of School and Pre-School Age Will Both
Be Accepted

Bucks County's first Child Care
Center, which is located at Bristol Terrace, No. 2, equipped by the Federal Public Housing Authority, will commence functioning on Tuesday, September 5th. Mrs. Sara Baker Buckley will direct activities of the center.

The Child Care Center, it is stated, is organized on a basic plan for 80 children, aged two to 12. There will be available enrollments for 20 children of two and three years of age; 20 of four and five years of age; and 40 aged six to twelve.

Throughout the school terms the children of school age will be in the center only when there are no
sessions of school, and during vacation periods full programs will be in order.

Each of the groups will be headed by a teacher trained in the work, and an assistant teacher will be provided for each pre-school group. There will also be a cook and an individual to care for the cleaning needs.

The hours of the center on this six days-a-week it will be open will be from six a. m. to 5:30 p. m.
Registration may be made until September 2nd from one to five
p. m. at the center. The fee announced is $3 per week for each pre-school child. Rates for school age children will vary depending upon the number of hours spent at the center.

Children cared for at the Center will be afforded a daily health inspection, balanced hot dinner in the middle of the day, rest periods,
outdoor and indoor play.

The girls and boys privileged to attend the child care center are those of all working mothers, or those whose fathers work at night
and require quiet for day-time sleeping.

TRUMAN'S RECORD

There is no news, of course, in the fact that Sen. Harry S. Truman, President Roosevelt's running mate, was the choice of the Hagues, the Kellys and the Flynns. That Senator Truman was one of Tom Pendergast's most loyal supporters has been mentioned, but a glance at the record will disclose how really loyal he was to that discredited and imprisoned political manipulator.

In January, 1938, President Roosevelt renominated Maurice M. Milligan as United States attorney for the western district of Missouri. Mr. Milligan had already sent members of the Pendergast machine to jail and was then gunning for Pendergast himself.

Senator Truman immediately announced he would oppose the appointment and on the floor of the Senate on February 15, 1938, he made a bitter and violent attack on Mr. Milligan. How much the Senate thought of this might be ascertained from the fact that the appointment was confirmed immediately after the close of Mr. Truman's denunciation.

The arch-Democratic New York Times commented editorially that "Tom Pendergast may have lost the cemetery vote, but he can not lose Harry Truman." Many Missouri papers attacked Truman, and the St. Louis Times-Star ran a cartoon showing Mr. Truman trying in vain to hose out a fire on a sinking ship flying the pirate flag and labeled "Pendergastian."

No wonder the big city machine politicians wanted Harry Truman so badly.

CATCHING UP WITH RUSSIA

In 1918, the Allied powers were preparing for the big, final offensive of 1919. Everything was geared toward that end. But when the American commanders realized the full extent of the political situation within Germany, the date of the offensive was changed and Gen. John J. Pershing threw everything he had at the Germans in the fall of 1918. By November the war was over.

This is midsummer of 1944. The German armies are encircled. Within Germany, there has been revolt, put down by ghastly blood-letting.

On the Eastern Front, the Russians are driving forward at a tremendous pace, using a daring and a boldness that is frequently breath-taking. By passing strongly defended key points and driving inland without regard for those sectors, the Russians have been using a strategy that is obviously tremendously successful.

While the Russian strategy by no means suggests that the Anglo-American forces follow suit, there is the possibility that the Allied high command in western Europe can use the Russian theme of striking at the right moment.

There are vast forces still at the disposition of the British and American commanders. And if there ever was the proper moment to use those forces, it would seem to be this summer.

GUESTS WILL SPEAK AT SUNDAY SERVICES

Scheduled To Visit Hulmeville, Newportville, Bensalem Churches

Licenses revoked . . . The Game Commission recently announced that a total of 781 persons will be denied hunting and trapping licenses in Pennsylvania this year because of carelessness or negligence in the use of firearms and for violation of the State Game Laws.

All of these revocations were authorized by the commission following hearings before referees.

In making this announcement the commission asserted that only by such stringent penalties can the lives of persons be protected and the welfare of wildlife in the State be safeguarded.

Hunting and trapping privileges for 47 persons were revoked for periods of one to five years beginning September 1st, 1944, because of carelessness and negligence in the use of firearms during the 1943 hunting season.

In addition 326 persons were denied hunting and trapping privileges, in most cases for two years, for flagrant violations of the Game Laws.

These penalties issued by the Commission this month, plus other penalties previously ordered, make a total of 781 persons whose hunting and trapping privileges have been denied this year.

Step forward in Pennsylvania conservation . . . In a recent statement the Game Commission announced the employment of Jacob Bates Abbott, of Haverford, nationally known wildlife illustrator and naturalist, to assist in promoting and expanding the department's educational program.

Abbott, a graduate of Harvard, where he majored in art and illustration, has achieved an enviable reputation in the conservation field, not only through his drawings, which have appeared on the covers of many of the country's foremost magazines, but through his interesting outdoor narratives, the material for which he acquired in 25 years of intensive study and research of the habits of wild birds and animals.

His first assignment will constitute a series of paintings of all the game birds and mammals and furbearers in the Commonwealth for the covers of the Commission's monthly magazine, "The Pennsylvania Game News," a monthly natural history department; and a pictorial weekly or semi-monthly series of conservation topics which will be made available to newspapers.

He will also design educational posters and exhibits, illustrate bulletins and reports, and otherwise use his skill to help advance the Game Commission's wildlife management program.

Migratory bird hunting methods . . . The following is permitted: shotgun only, not larger than 10-gauge, fired from shoulder (including hand-operated repeating shotgun of not more than 3-shell capacity, which must be plugged to 3 shells); bow and arrow; dog; blind; boat propelled by hand; floating device other than sinkbox; artificial water-fowl decoys. Injured or dead waterfowl may be picked up by means of a motor boat, sailboat or other craft.

The following is prohibited: automatic shotgun, hand operated, repeating shotgun, of more than 3-shell capacity in magazine and chamber combined; all rifles; live duck or goose decoys; automobile; aircraft; sinkbox (battery); power boat, sailboat, or any device towed by power boat or sailboat; the placing or distributing in any manner of corn, wheat, oats, or other grain or product thereof, salt, or any kind of food, whereby migratory game birds are attracted or lured, regardless of distance between such food and the hunter; the taking of waterfowl by use of cattle, horses or mules. No aircraft, power boat or floating device of any kind may be used to concentrate, drive, rally or stir up waterfowl or coots.

ation of Doura-Europos, the Greco-Roman city excavated by Yale University interests. The Byblos operation in Lebanon, operated by the Service of Antiquities, was also mentioned, as well as the activities at Mari, excavated by the Louvre.

A "site" was described by Mr. Pearson as visible ruins, such as those at Palmyra and Athens. He also told how a tel is found—ruins on which newer civilizations have been built.

Method of operation at the sites was gone into in detail, the workmen being paid a top rate of 80c a day. How a tel is excavated, by spade or by layers; the disposal of the dirt; the deductive reasoning to arrive at conclusions as to age, etc., were considered.

The manner in which contracts are entered into with local governments was mentioned.

The Rotarians took much interest also in living conditions at the sites, obtaining of supplies, the combatting of dirt and disease among the natives; the superstitions and character of the natives.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

ed his special train to stop at Chicago for a conference with Chairman Hannegan, who was his manager at the convention; that he had had telephone conversations with other politicians on the trip; that the timing of the trip fitted perfectly into the Commander-in-Chief strategy on which his fourth-term effort is being based. None of these—and other things—could be brought to Mr. Roosevelt's attention after he had declared it a "fool" question and exhibited irritation at being asked it. The dignity of the Presidential office is such that the President cannot be argued with by his questioners. The accuracy of his statements cannot be questioned and resentment at his manners may not be shown.

THE REPORTERS knew that it was not a "fool" question. They knew it was a very timely, pertinent and proper one. But, not one man present dared say that—or repeat the question. That sort of thing cannot be done at a President's press conference. The topic just had to be dropped. It was the same way the same day on another matter. Reporters asked the President whether he had anything to say about the invitation to Mr. Willkie to discuss foreign policy with him. Mr. Roosevelt replied that he had never heard of any such invitation. That ended that so far as the conference was concerned. The New York Herald Tribune next day did repeat emphatically that an invitation to Mr. Willkie had been sent from the White House on White House stationery and been received by Mr. Willkie.

BUT, NO ONE had the hardihood to rectify this fact to Mr. Roosevelt after his statement. It would have been equivalent to doubting the President's word and that just isn't done openly in a press conference. Yet, there wasn't a reporter present who did not believe there was a basis for the published story. It had been printed widely all over the country days before, with no White House denial by the astute and alert Presidential secretary, Mr. Early. A week later Mr. Roosevelt was compelled to admit that he had sought a conference with Mr. Willkie exactly as had been stated. Reporters would not submit to this sort of equivocation from anyone else. They have to submit when it comes from the President—but they do not like it.

CONTRAST all this with a Dewey press conference. The prestige of his present office affords him no comparable protection. Either patronage, evasion or inaccuracy would be instantly and openly resented by the attending newspapermen. At the Dewey press conferences no holds are barred and there is nothing to check the questioners, except good manners and a sense of fairness. Among the men who attend the Dewey conferences are some who are extremely hostile to him, eager to trip him up. These ask the most embarrassing questions of which they can think. There are no reasons why, if Mr. Dewey's answer to a question is considered inadequate or evasive, the question should not be repeated and the subject followed up—and it is.

GOVERNOR DEWEY is in no position to dispose of an awkward inquiry by saying it is a "fool" question, or by showing temper. That sort of thing for him would be pretty near fatal from the press standpoint. He has to "take it" but the President does not have to "take it"—and he shouldn't. The Presidential office is entitled to a respect due no other. But the fact that he commands and gets that respect ought to make the incumbent exceedingly careful about taking advantage of his position, abusing his power and bullying his questioners. This President is anything but careful about these things. With knowledge of his power and both the ability and the willingness to use it, it is not surprising Mr. Roosevelt is at greater ease in press conferences than Mr. Dewey. The President dominates and controls his gatherings in a way Mr. Dewey cannot do. Nor can any other man who is not President. The only way Mr. Dewey can handle the embarrassing or improper question is to say "no comment." Otherwise he has to come

Verdun Captured By Patton's Army

ling ride but nowhere did I run into a heavy fight. There were only sporadic nests of enemy resistance which usually quit after the first few minutes of shooting.

It's a blitzkrieg in reverse, mainly along key roads. Patton's army shows no signs of slowing up nor does the weary Wehrmacht exhibit any evidences of bucking up and rallying for a major battle.

The fact is that Patton is now within striking distance of Belgium and is forcing the Germans to yield France without doing very much about it.

any time since he has been observing weather changes. He also pointed out that a July drought does more damage to crops than at any other time of year because the heat then dries out any other moisture in the ground.

The heaviest rainfall he observed took place July 27, 1942, when five inches fell in four hours, while the deepest snow he recorded on April 5, 1915, when 20 inches fell. On Dec. 25, 1909, another 20 inches of snow fell.

Extreme temperatures for this section included 20 below zero reported at Quakertown in February, 1934. At that time Mr. Hall recorded a reading of 16 below zero on February 9 and February 28. His other reading of that temperature came on February 2, 1918. His highest reading was Aug. 7, 1918, when it was 106 degrees.

He uses a standard barometer, a thermometer and a rain gauge to submit his reports to the state authorities. The lowest barometer reading he ever took here in his career was on March 6, 1932, when the indicator stood at 28.48 inches while there were high winds, snow and then rain. The highest was exactly 31 inches on Jan. 27, 1927. It was clear and cold, with the thermometer at 4 below zero. The next day it was snowing. For comparison's sake he said the lowest barometer reading taken in the U. S. was 26.35 in a Florida hurricane with a 175 mile an hour wind. The highest reading in the U. S. was 31.70 taken on the west coast. Normal pressure in a barometer is 29.92.

Mr. Hall has been forecasting weather 35 years, but he does not use caterpillars or geesebones in his work. William Pfeffer presented him to the club.

The historic fortress city of Verdun fell to the lightning-swift forces of Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army today in its sweep toward the German border.

Striking on a wide front east of the cathedral city of Reims, Patton's Yanks flashed through the Aisne-Meuse valley and seized Verdun as the Germans fled from the bloodiest battlefield of World War I without putting up any serious resistance.

established" not only for the practical motive of being able to borrow again in the future, but also for the more abstract "cause of good government." As to how to maintain public credit, he said:

"The ready answer . . . is, by good faith; by a punctual performance of contracts . . .

"There are arguments for it which rest on the immutable principles of moral obligation . . . (There is) an intimate connection between public virtue and public happiness."

In this connection he also dwelt upon the principle that "the creation of (national) debt should always be accompanied by some means of extinguishment."

This appraisal accomplished more than merely carrying through Hamilton's program for repaying all public debts, supporting the "paper" currency, and enacting taxes to meet current needs; it set the young nation's feet on a path of integrity which it held for a century and a half.

The sanctity of public credit and currency was inviolate for many generations. Even the turbulent "free silver" issue of the latter part of the last century, culminating in the eloquence of Bryan and his "Cross of Gold" speech, could not swerve the determination of the American people to risk nothing which might weaken the nation's financial stability.

The principle of governmental morality in finances received full endorsement in 1932 from both Candidate Roosevelt and his party platform. As to national finances, their pledge was for strict economy; specifically, "to accomplish a saving of not less than 25 per cent in the cost of Federal Government."

The pledge on currency was: "We advocate a sound currency to be preserved at all hazards."

Moreover, Mr. Roosevelt because quite warm over the intimation by Republicans that some of the Democratic proposals might force the nation off the gold standard and result in "rubber dollars." Those interested may re-read his Brooklyn address on November 4, 1932.

Mr. Roosevelt said that the hint the nation might go off gold "was a libel on the credit of the United States," and he cited several of his own speeches to show his "unqualified acceptance" of his party's sound-currency plank.

None of the implied and direct promises, bearing so closely upon the good faith and credit of the nation, was kept.

The doctrine of the Hitlers and Machiavellis prevailed, not the traditional American concept of "public virtue."

When President Roosevelt had been in office a year, the currency had been inflated approximately half, gold was in process of being outlawed, and national expenditures, instead of being cut one quarter, had nearly doubled. (Tomorrow: Double-Cross of Gold.)
